O: Do you see that park, Kieko? That is where you will practice your psionics.

K: With other children?

O: Yes, with other children. Some are older than you, and they will help you learn.

K: Am I the youngest?

O: Yes, you are the youngest. You will most often play and learn with the younger children.

K: How old are they? (How many teqozdij do they have?)

O: They are in their second or third teqozdij.

K: Who is the oldest?

O: That is Iniasha. He is in the second year of his fifth teqozdij. In Ashtiavl he will become a full dlenchiepr.

K: Will I become a dlenchiepr too?

O: You will, if you study and practice.

Grammar: The Conditional Aspect (ek-)

When discussing events whose outcomes are dependent on some other factors, things that might happen if certain conditions are met, or things that could have happened, we use the conditional aspect. This is a sentence construction like any of the others previously discussed (past, future, optative, etc) and uses the prefix ek- (ᑭᑦ) in the same way:

ek-	ᑭᑦ	conditional mood
ekenzh	ᑭᑦᑦᑭᑦ	participial conditional
ekej	ᑭᑦᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦ	perfective conditional

The participial conditional aspect implies the future tense as well, as in “this could happen if this other thing happens”.

Pierad ekige, pierdish ekenzh.

ᑭᑦᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦ ᑭᑦᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦ. ᑭᑦᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦ ᑭᑦᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦ.
If there is a flight, then we will fly.

Notice the doubled use of the conditional ek in this example. The Anglic meaning of the statement would translate to “if ... then.” To negate the statement, we insert the negation word qlie:

Qlie pierad ekige, qlie pierdish ekenzh.

ᑭᑦᑦ ᑭᑦᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦ ᑭᑦᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦ. ᑭᑦᑦ ᑭᑦᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦ ᑭᑦᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦ.
If there is no flight, then we not will fly.

This form can also be used in combination with the verb infinitive to imply perhaps, maybe or probably. This can produce poetic language, such as that seen by the famous poet and dramatist Vrolez Chtechtelezhdalef (ᑭᑦᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦ ᑭᑦᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦ). For example:

Kochie, zdeze ekenzh.

ᑭᑦᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦ. ᑭᑦᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦ ᑭᑦᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦ.
To sleep, perchance to dream.

Ek is also used on its own as an interjection or informal, casual response:

Q: Pierdish chtenzenzh aqle?

ᑭᑦᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦ ᑭᑦᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦ ᑭᑦᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦ.
Will we fly?

A: Ek.

ᑭᑦᑦᑭᑦᑭᑦ.

Maybe.

Exercises (Ajozdarad)

1. We might have dinner soon.
2. Maybe I won't go to Dlolpliki.
3. She might win the Games (Tegozdievl)!
4. If she plays the Games, she might win.
5. If there is food, then we will eat.

Grammar: The Imperative Aspect (zhda-)

When giving someone an order, instruction or directive, the imperative aspect is used. Most often this is done by emphasizing the verb:

Kiat!!
 ㄗㅅㄷㄹ//
 Attack!

This is a less formal, more militaristic usage of the imperative that is seen commonly in situations where expedience is called for. A more formal or polite way of expressing the same instruction uses the construction zhda- (ㄗㅅㄹ-) with the usual participial or perfective suffixes:

zhda-	ㄗㅅㄹ-	imperative mood
zhdaenzh	ㄗㅅㄹㅈ	imperative participle
zhdaej	ㄗㅅㄹㅊ	imperative perfective

The participial imperative aspect implies that the action in question must be done or is something the subject should be doing (and by inference, something the speaker is instructing the listener to do).

Kiatlo'd zhdaenzh!
 ㄗㅅㄷㄹㄹㅈ ㄗㅅㄹㅈ//
 You must attack!

Similarly, the past perfect imperative is often used to suggest an action that should have been done.

Kochieo'd zhdaej.
 ㄗㄹㅈㅅㅅㄹㅈ ㄗㅅㄹㅊ*
 You should have slept.

The construction zhda can also be used as a suffix applied to the verb to indicate a particular sense of urgency:

Makozhda! Makozhda!
 ㅁㅁㅁㅁㅁㅁ ㄗㅅㄹ// ㅁㅁㅁㅁㅁㅁ ㄗㅅㄹ//
 Help! Help!

Practice using the imperative aspect.

Exercises

1. Eat your food.
2. Read your book!
3. Go to sleep!
4. Leave!
5. You should have eaten.

Scene: Three children are playing in the field, levitating various objects including balls and a hoop. Kieko approaches them cautiously with Obrenstebr. Obrenstebr introduces Kieko to the children.

The children pause their play.

Obrenstebr: Children, this is Kieko, our new dlenchiepr-child.

Aiapor: Good to meet you, Kieko!

Niria'lients: Are you a telekinetic?

Obrenstebr: Yes, Kieko is telekinetic. She will join you in your training from now on.

Prezbra: She will do well. Kieko watch for the ball.

Kieko: What ball? (a ball flies over her head)

Prezbra: That ball. It is good to meet you.

Obrenstebr: Please join the children and play, Kieko. I must speak with your dlenchiepr-mothers.

Kieko: Thank you, Obrenstebr. Aiaplor, what are we playing?

Aiaplor: Levitation and throwing! One of us levitates a ball and the others try to hit it telekinetically.

Niria'lients: Try it, it's fun! I'll levitate a ball. (He concentrates and the largest ball floats upward) Now, move a ball telekinetically and try to make it hit mine.

Kieko: Ok... (she concentrates and a ball begins to float. Slowly it moves toward the larger ball.)

Prezbra: It's going to fall.

Aiaplor: Quiet, Prezbra. (To Kieko) He thinks he's a precognitive.

(Kieko's ball gets close to the larger ball, then falls)

Kieko: it's too far away!

Niria'lients: Don't worry, you'll get better at it. We practice every day. Want to try again?

Kieko: Yes, please!
